

SOURCES FOR THE HISTORY OF THE 1984-85 MINERS' STRIKE

A SUBJECT GUIDE ON LABOUR HISTORY THEMES BY THE SOCIETY FOR THE STUDY OF LABOUR HISTORY

This fact sheet was created to provide a guide to sources held in archives and libraries relating to the 1984-85 miners' strike. It is not an exhaustive survey of resources for the history of the unemployed but an overview of key collections held at institutions that are members of SSLH ARC.

The People's History Museum (the National Museum of Labour History until 2001) in Manchester, England, is the UK's national centre for the collection, conservation, interpretation and study of material relating to the history of working people in the UK. The Museum houses the internationally significant Labour History Archive & Study Centre (LHASC), housing collections of key political papers including the complete archives of two of the most important political parties in British history, the Labour Party and the Communist Party of Great Britain, as well as the personal papers of prominent figures within those two parties, such as Michael Foot, Judith Hart, Eric Heffer, Harry Pollitt and Rajani Palme Dutt. The two collections also include over 95,000 photographs, which provide a comprehensive overview of the growth of democracy in Britain.

Additional complementary collections include the archives of the Manchester branch of radical environmental advocacy group Earth First!, the National Federation of Old Age Pensions Associations, and both the Nicaragua and Chile Solidarity Campaigns.

- Labour Party and other left wing groups' publications: Labour Weekly, New Socialist, Socialist Youth, Militant, Labour Student, London Labour Briefing, and Marxism Today
- Pamphlet collection – (ref: 331.861) around 30 pamphlets directly related to the strike. Also, there are material in other areas of this collection that will be of use, such as Industrial Legislation.
- Labour Party Conference Reports and the Trades Union Congress Annual Conference Reports for the years 1984 and 1985.
- National Executive Committee (NEC) of the Labour Party (ref: LP/NEC) – minutes of meetings held every two or four weeks depending on events, that fully reflect the political background of the strike.

- Individual MP's papers that contain material pertinent to the strike.

The National Library of Scotland has its origins in the Advocates Library, founded in Edinburgh in the early 1680s. Under the 1710 Copyright Act, the Advocates Library had been given the legal right to claim a copy of every book published in Britain. In the following centuries, the Library added books and manuscripts to its collections by purchase as well as legal deposit. In April 2007 the Scottish Screen Archive, Scotland's national moving images archive, became part of the National Library of Scotland, and is now based at Kelvin Hall in Glasgow

Following the establishment of the National Library by an Act of Parliament in 1925, political manuscripts became a major collection area. The Archives & Manuscripts Division has important holdings of the papers of modern Scottish politicians, political parties, activists, and campaign groups. From the 1960s onwards, the Library also became very active in collecting manuscript and archival material relating to the history of the labour and trade union movements. In collecting this material, the Library has often worked in partnership with the Scottish Labour History Society and the Scottish Working People's History Trust.

- Smith Mining Archive – A collection relating to the Miner's Strike in 1984-1985 and its aftermath. It consists of around 80 folders of press cuttings, typescript documents, four albums of photographs, printed ephemera, correspondence and nine video cassettes. The collection was formed by former miner and National Union of Mineworkers member Patrick Joseph Smith of Tranent, East Lothian, who took part in the strike. The emphasis of the collection is on the strike in Scotland and in particular on the now closed mines of Bilston Glen Colliery, in Midlothian, and Monktonhall, in East Lothian. Shelfmark: SMA. <https://digital.nls.uk/catalogues/special-and-named-printed-collections/?id=677>
- Various records of the National Union of Mineworkers, Scottish Area and branches in Fife, Ayrshire, Lanarkshire, and the Lothians, c. 1887-1985 – Shelfmarks: Acc.4311, Acc.4312, Acc.9805, Acc.10483, Acc.10812, Dep.227, Dep.258. https://manuscripts.nls.uk/agents/4183?agent_type=agent_corporate_entity
- William Gallacher Memorial Library (WGML) Archive – Within the archive component to this hybrid collection, the special collections of Bob Morrison, trade union official and member of the Movement for Colonial Freedom, and Douglas Allen, Chair of the Scottish Labour History Society, contain research papers and ephemera relating to the strike and action in support of striking miners in Scotland, c.1984-1988. The WGML Archive also contains a headlamp belonging to an unknown miner. Shelfmark: Acc.14114. <https://manuscripts.nls.uk/repositories/2/resources/22401>

- Papers of Ian S. Wood, historian, concerning UK industrial relations – Including press cuttings and ephemera documenting miners' strike action, c.1981-1988 (2 folders). Shelfmark: Acc.12155/22-23. 2 folders. <https://manuscripts.nls.uk/repositories/2/resources/3000>
- Moving Image Archive – Various films relating to industrial action in Scottish mining communities during the 1970s and 1980s, including footage of picket lines, unemployed workers' protests, and interviews with striking miners. See: <https://movingimage.nls.uk/>

The Marx Memorial Library & Workers' School was founded in 1933 in response to the rise of fascism in Europe. Its aim today remains the advance of education, knowledge and understanding of all aspects of Marxism and the history of socialism and working-class struggle. At the heart of the British labour movement for over 80 years, the Library is home to a unique collection of published and archival sources on related subjects, including the Spanish Civil War, trade unionism and peace and solidarity campaigns. The Library's education programme – online and on-site – covers subjects ranging from political and economic theory to socialist art.

The MML is open Tuesday-Thursday 11am-5pm for visits by appointment only. Please email info@marx-memorial-library.org.uk for further information. Our catalogue can be found here: https://www.marx-memoriallibrary.org.uk/collections

Resources relating to the Miner's Strike include:

- Paul Galloway Collection

Paul Galloway was a mineworker at Thoresby in Nottinghamshire in the 1980s and 1990s. He was involved in the NUM and took part in the strike, as well as being involved in a number of other political organisations and campaigns. This collection of his personal papers includes publications from the NUM and other trade unions, the coal industry more widely and political organisations. It also includes organisational papers and minutes from bodies within the NUM, Paul's own notes and correspondence, and memorabilia of the NUM and strike.

The SWML is open Tuesday-Friday 09.30am-4.45pm.

The South Wales Miners' Library was opened in October 1973 to house material collected by the South Wales Coalfield History Project. Funded by the Social Science Research Council, the project's aim was to preserve oral, visual and written evidence of coal mining and miners in South Wales at a time when the industry had started to decline and valuable material was in danger of being lost. The project collected a wide range of material which forms the core of the South Wales Coalfield Collection. The South Wales Miners' Library houses the printed book and pamphlet collections, including the libraries of over 60 institute and welfare halls from across the coalfield, oral history, video, poster, and banner collections. The manuscript records and photographs are held in the University's Richard Burton Archives.

- Collections

The Collection is split across two sites-

- archival material (such as minute books, financial records, correspondence etc.) and photographs are held in the Richard Burton Archives.
- published material, audio-visual, and banners are held in the South Wales Miners' Library.

You can browse and search contents of the South Wales Coalfield Collection using the Coalfield Web Materials website <http://www.agor.org.uk/cwm/> and the South Wales Coalfield Collection website <https://lisweb.swan.ac.uk/swcc/>. For advice on searching, and more information about records and research topics, please do contact us archives@swansea.ac.uk.

Archival collections comprise:

- Records of miners' institutes, welfare associations, friendly societies, distress funds, and workmen's hospitals.

- Records of co-operative societies located in the mining districts of the South Wales region of the Co-operative Union Limited. This includes minute books, financial records and administrative records. In addition the archive also contains periodicals, bulletins and other printed material published by the Co-operative Wholesale Society Limited and the Co-operative Union Limited, intended for the co-operative movement as a whole.
- Over 4,000 photographs which relate to many aspects of the coalfield industry and South Wales community life including disputes and strikes from the Cambrian Combine Dispute 1910-1911 to the Miners' Strike in 1984-1985, leaders, delegations, institutes and members of lodge local sports teams, choirs, dramatic societies and of other social activities in the communities including galas and eisteddfodau. In addition, there are photographs of collieries, volunteers in the Spanish Civil War and topographical photographs of the South Wales valleys. We also hold personal photographic collections, including those of Arthur Horner and Glyn Williams.
- Personal archival collection deposited by people connected with the South Wales Coalfield. The material comes from a variety of individuals, including MPs and those who worked in the pits. The collections reflect the lives and interests of those involved in the South Wales Coalfield and its communities. Correspondence, newscuttings, copies of speeches and notebooks are just a few examples of the varied content of the collection. These include the papers of Hywel Francis and David Sutton.
- The records of the NUM (South Wales Area) central administration, consisting of minute books and accounts, and correspondence relating to a wide range of topics effecting the mining industry.
- Records of the lodges of the National Union of Mineworkers (and its predecessor the South Wales Miners' Federation (SWMF) including minute books, correspondence, financial papers etc.

The Royal College of Nursing is a professional UK membership body and union of over 435,000 registered nurses, midwives, health care practitioners and nursing students. The RCN Library and Archive Service (LAS) holds Europe's largest nursing collection, with the historical collections being held in London and Edinburgh. The collection is primarily in the English language and dates mainly from the 1850s. The RCN was founded in 1916 to lobby parliament for the state registration of nurse and continues to actively campaign for nursing. Its library service established in 1922 and the archive in the 1980s.

RCN LAS actively collects material on nursing in the UK, focusing on RCN union activities including its annual Congress, industrial relations issues, campaigns and activism. Recurring themes include pay and conditions, gender, status of women, diversity, immigration, public health, mental health.

Catalogues are available online, together with an increasing number of free online resources such as digitised content and exhibitions. RCN LAS also delivers an annual programme of events aimed at the public.

- There are a significant number of nurses working in the high risk industries including mining, hence there being references in our collections.
- The trade journals at the time have a number of relating to the strike and a lot of first person experiences and reflections.
